It shall be the duty of the Board of Managers, assisted by the Standing Committee, to seek out young women taking up their residence in Boston, and endeavor to bring them under moral and religious influences, by aiding them in the selection of suitable boarding places and employment, by introducing them to the members and privileges of this Association, securing their attendance at some place of worship on the Sabbath, and by every means in their power, surrounding them with Christian associates. It shall be their duty also to exert themselves to interest the churches to which they respectively belong, in the objects and welfare of the Association. They shall labor to induce all suitable young women to connect themselves with the Association, and to use all practicable means for increasing its members, activity and usefulness.

ANNUAL REPORT.

In presenting their First Annual Report, the Managers of the Young Women's Christian Association would acknowledge with gratitude that kind Providence which has smiled upon the efforts involved in the commencement of this enterprise. For a long time the need of such an institution has been felt by many persons, though the precise form which labors in this direction should take has not been so clear. It is well known that many young women come to the city from homes in the country, where they have enjoyed the blessings of parental affection, care, and guardianship. Their worldly circumstances necessitate their separation from loved ones, and compel them to seek employment where there is a larger demand for it. They generally come inexperienced, unacquainted with the difficulties which are before them, and unaware of the dangers which surround them, obliged to seek their homes where snares are spread on every side, with no kind hand to lead, or wise and judicious acquaintance to advise.

The considerations that have led to the formation of Young Men's Christian Associations, apply, if possible, with increased force in the case of young Women, who from their position and sex, are unprotected and more helpless. The nature of the case would call for a somewhat different method from that adopted for the benefit of young men. It has been felt that some agency should be devised that would meet young women on their arrival in the city, conduct them to proper homes, surround them with Christian sympathy and elevating influences, furnish them pleasant occupation for their leisure hours, introduce them to religious privileges, and in various ways promote their spiritual and temporal welfare.

The first movements in this direction were made during the latter part of the year 1865. A number of ladies met and conferred together on the subject. A variety of opinions was very naturally found to exist, some feeling that the immediate establishment of a home for young women was what was needed, while others conceived the idea of an organization like that which was subsequently formed. The majority, however, were of the opinion that it was not advisable at present to attempt any method of operating that would require a large outlay of funds. They felt that time would aid them in seeing more clearly the right path, and that Providence would make provision for the wants of the enterprise as they became better known, and exigencies were seen to arise. This Society, whose first anniversary we celebrate to-day, was organized March 3, 1866. In carrying out its beneficent design, the Board of Managers procured and furnished rooms in the Congregational Building, No. 23 Chauncy Street, for the Society's purposes, and where all who were the objects of its exertions could find the aid and sympathy which it was intended to afford. A Superintendent was employed and placed there, whose duty it is to ascertain want, to furnish information as to employment and boarding-places, and in any other practicable way to carry out the designs of the organization.

A circular was issued, addressed to the pastors of churches in New England, stating the purpose of the Association, and informing them that they might avail themselves of its aid in counselling young women about to seek an abode in the city. This Circular was not designed to encourage young women to leave good homes in the country to enter upon a city life, for it cannot be disguised that the increased compensation sometimes received is a very inadequate recompense for scanty fare, crowded and uncomfortable lodging apartments, exposure to storms, ill-ventilated work-rooms, and the fearful temptations encountered. But as the demands of business, and the necessity of doing something for their own support, cause large numbers to come, it was deemed desirable that influential persons, in the towns to which they belonged, should be made acquainted with this agency, and recommend to them, on their arrival here, to avail themselves of it.

Many of the evils seen to exist in connection with the position of these young women in the city might be avoided, if there were more of a disposition on their part, to accept of places in private families, where they would be comfortably as well as pleasantly located. These evils spring from the fact that the places sought for are far less numerous than those seeking for them. A stranger in quest of employment is often told that preference is given to one acquainted with city trade, and hence the rejected applicant, homeless and friendless, knowing not in what direction to look for relief, and unwilling to take a position which she regards as that of an inferior, finds herself at last confronted with the fearful alternative of either starving or sinning.

The Rooms were opened in May, the first meeting of the Managers held there being on the 7th of that month. The Superintendent, Miss Foster, was at that time placed in charge of the Rooms, where she has been found ready to render such aid and counsel as circumstances permitted, to those who have consulted her. It were hardly to be expected that at first, while this movement was comparatively unknown, and especially so to those for whom it was undertaken, applications for assistance would be numerous; but we are happy to report, that as the knowledge of it has extended, there has been a gradual and constant increase of visitors.

The Rooms have been open every evening, except Sabbath evenings, for social purposes, for reading, and such healthy recreations as might be afforded. A prayer-meeting has been held on Thursday evenings, and Bible and Singing Classes have been organized. The Superintendent, in her statement, remarks that "most of the constant attendants at these classes are those who have felt grateful to the Association for furnishing boarding-places, or for some mark of sympathy. Some, however, came originally by invitation of others."

In speaking of visits made to the Rooms, the Superintendent says:

"During the first two months, most of the visitors were ladies interested in the new movement for the sake of others; and during the last months, the great majority are those interested for their own sake."

"Since October, we have averaged more than one hundred and twenty calls per month from young women, many of them in difficulties in regard to boarding-places and employment. We have been able to afford help and comfort, have found homes or home-like boarding places for more than fifty, most of whom have no relatives in the city. Very few of the whole number who visit the Rooms are directly from the country. Some on arriving in the city have come to us through the influence of the Circular, and several who were ignorant of such an organization, have providentially come in contact with members of the Association, or persons cognizant of it."

One or two cases will illustrate the practical and beneficial working of this institution. A young girl from Scotland, who had been dangerously sick at the City Hospital, upon recovery, made an effort to obtain a situation. Accidentally meeting one of the members of the Society in the street, to whom she made known her case, she was sent to the Rooms for the advice and aid she needed, and by this means obtained a situation and a pleasant home in a Christian family.

A young girl came from the country unacquainted with any person in the city. On arriving, she inquired for a public house, and was taken to one of our principal hotels, the housekeeper of which, learning her object in coming, and seeing that she needed counsel and friendship, advised her to apply to the Association, she having learned of its existence and object from one of the city pulpits. The superintendent assisted her in obtaining a boarding-place, and thus enabled her to find permanent employment.

Through the Circular, information has already been considerably extended in regard to this agency. Still, measures should be taken to make the Society much more widely known. There can be no doubt, if efficient efforts are made for this purpose, the Association may become instrumental of incalculable good to thousands, affording them just the aid they need.

The brief experience which we have had since the Society went into operation has satisfied us that in order to accomplish most successfully the objects aimed at, there should be a Home in connection with it, which once established and free from debt, could, in our opinion, be made self-supporting, while those who might enjoy its advantages would be subjected to no greater expense than they now incur for poorer accommodations elsewhere. The inexperienced young stranger coming to it would find safety, and the influences emanating from it would tend strongly to preserve and foster whatever of innocence and excellence she might possess. Properly introduced, she would there enjoy the right kind of companionship, she would, perhaps, be induced to join the Bible-class, and through its influence be led to obtain a spiritual home in some one of the evangelical churches of the city. A warmed, well-lighted, cheerful reading-room, supplied with suitable books and periodicals, would offer inducements and facilities for self-improvement, and thus the temptations to seek amusements elsewhere be greatly diminished.

A Home like this, encouraging, harboring and aiding young women of the proper character, might incidentally be of great service to employers who, desiring the right kind of help, would naturally apply to the Home for it, when they came to know the nature of its work, and would doubtless more readily employ those who had enjoyed the confidence of such an institution. Thus, to have been its inmate would prove a recommendation and a passport to a position and employment.

In accordance with these views, incipient movements have been made in this direction. A subscription has been opened, and a number of gentlemen, known as ready to engage in every good work, have pledged generous sums. The enterprise is soon to be prosecuted, we trust, to its full completion.

In our infancy as a Society, our necessities were duly appreciated by gentlemen who kindly furnished funds necessary to carry on its work. Mr. Arthur Wilkinson, Mr. B. C. Clark, Mr. John Tappan, Mr. G. Bradford, and Mrs. B. Welles, contributed one hundred dollars each. The proprietors of the "Congregationalist," "Recorder," "New York Witness," "Morning Star," "Christian Witness and Advocate," and "Watchman and Reflector," have supplied the Room with copies of these valuable sheets. The Messrs. Harpers, of New York, the Bible and Tract Societies, Mr. Abner Kinman, Mr. Goldsmith, Mr. and Miss Walley, have furnished books, periodicals and pamphlets, for the library. Mr. Edwin Lamson and Mr. Josiah Fairbanks, record-books. Many of the girls who frequent Rooms have been greatly pleased with a stereoscope presented by Mrs. Boyd; and for the timely gift
